NOTE: This is a corrected version of a news release issued earlier this morning. The headline has been revised to clarify that survey results will be used as feedback.

Last day for public to provide survey feedback on northeast elementary school boundary line options

Survey results will go to committee recommending boundary plan

TOWSON, MD – The public has one more day to select from among two options for new boundary lines for elementary schools in northeastern Baltimore County. The deadline for taking the survey here is midnight today, Wednesday, November 17, 2021.

Survey results are part of the feedback that will be used by the Northeast Area Elementary Boundary Study Committee to choose an option and formulate a recommendation for new attendance boundaries. The goal of the new boundaries is to relieve overcrowding through additional seats at a new northeast elementary school currently under construction at Rossville Boulevard and Gum Spring Road and a replacement building for Red House Run Elementary School.

The two options were developed by the committee, which has been meeting since September, and shared at a public information session on Nov. 3. The committee's recommendation will go to BCPS leadership and finally to the Board of Education for action in March 2022.
